Download cracked version Of Noteworthy Composer 2.75a.2.Q: SAS: get row data with value range, weight by each row I have a dataset which records a user's response time at each of several points in time for a survey. I want to weight by each person's performance to get an average value per time. I have some code that does that, but with the first group, only a few people respond to one of the surveys, so the numbers are too small and average out to zero. My code: proc means data=prod14_setup_no using(group/dates_of_survey); by dates_of_survey; class response_time; var response_time_group; sort dates_of_survey; output out=prod14_setup_mean group=response_time_group mean=1/(response_time_group); run; This code works fine for several time periods as long as the number of responses is equal or larger. Is there a way to code this to take the response into account?
